GETTING TALENT BACK TO WORK
People with criminal records are an overlooked and undervalued employment resource. Learn how to bring this untapped talent on board effectively.

GLOBAL HR
In today’s multinational business climate, talent can originate anywhere. Position your organization to build a productive, unified, global workforce.

SKILLS GAP
The skills gap is real—and growing. HR can help bridge the gap, deploying strategies and tools to prepare students and workers for today and tomorrow.

HR TECHNOLOGY & ANALYTICS
Technology is transforming everything about work. HR must be ready to manage the changing nature of the workplace and every employee’s experience.

IMMIGRATION
To close skills gaps, employers must access foreign-born talent. How do we make employment-based immigration work for both businesses and U.S. workers?

GOVERNMENT POLICY

INCLUSION & DIVERSITY
Fostering workplace diversity requires organizations to lead with inclusion. Diversity only benefits companies that create a truly inclusive culture.

HARASSMENT
To create workplaces where harassment isn’t tolerated, we must do more than make rules and policies—we must change the culture from the inside.

LEADERSHIP
HR plays a key role in advancing the organization’s vision, mission and values, so you must do the work and acquire the skills to be intentional leaders.

WORKPLACE CULTURE
Positive work cultures are based on strongly held and widely shared sets of beliefs that are supported by strategy and structure.

WORKPLACE ISSUES
Today’s biggest societal issues are also workplace issues. HR now plays a pivotal role in driving social change, because those changes begin at work.

VETERANS
The 360,000 people who leave the military each year are a ripe source for talent. Do you have the skills to find and keep the best of the best?
